

On October 25-27, Imerys Kaolin held our seventh annual Kaolin Pigment Course in Milledgeville and Sandersville. Customers from around the world traveled to middle Georgia for the three day program. The course provided an overview of pigments and their applications, with various presentations by our top team of specialists, plus an educational tour of our mines, plant and technology center. The course was extremely well received, and we appreciated the opportunity to engage with our customers and exchange ideas.

One customer said " I did not realize the vast differences there were between clays....even in the same mine. The course brought supplier and consumer together in a good atmosphere."

Another was excited to apply new information to her job: "I learned how to choose pigments accurately based on my process and customer requirements."

We hope to host another pigment course in the spring of 2018.

Kaolin Pigment Course attendees

Talk at our Sandersville Mine

For more information, please contact your local Imerys sales person or submit an enquiry through our contact form available on www.imerys-kaolin.com.